

New Psychoactive Substances Seminar

Trondheim, Norway, 27th May 2014

New psychoactive substances (NPS) (designer drugs, “legal highs”) have been emerging onto the recreational drug scene at an unprecedented rate. Many of us working in this area are left floundering under the ingenuity of the market, and the speed at which it reacts. As producers and retailers of designer drugs have become more creative, so have our methods for monitoring the emergence and usage of these substances.

This one day seminar is intended to give participants an insight into of the latest NPS trends as captured by initiatives such as the EU early warning system and STRIDA project, and through routine case work. The challenges of detection and stability will also be addressed.

Early warning systems • Custom seizures • Case Studies • Rapid tests • Waste water analysis • Stability

Who should attend?

- Toxicologists
- Clinicians
- Drug support workers
- Law enforcement
- Border control
- Policy makers
- General public

For more information go to:

www.trondheim2014.com

Enquiries, requests, general information: Chiron@chiron.no

